Any position not listed here that meets the definition of a researcher or research support role (with the exception of Student Assistant and Graduate Assistant positions), should go through the screening process. Researcher and research support positions are defined as "any UF person who directs or conducts research or creates research materials or receives training in the conduct of research or a person who collects, manipulates, manages or controls access to research data or research activities or other sensitive data. These positions may involve external oversight for conducting activities, however the source of funds does not dictate the coding of researcher or research support positions. These positions can include scholarly activities."

Only System Admin/Programmer positions with research/research support duties assigned.
